COMMUNITY IMPACT

Longmont Family Uses Agrivoltaics to Save Farm

A farm in Longmont added more than 3,000 solar panels to provide electricity to the grid and provide shade to the crops below. This increased agricultural yields and generated an additional source of income for the 53 year old family farm.

Nonprofit Saves $300,000 With Solar

Womens Bean Project in Denver built a 102 kW rooftop solar array. This will provide all the energy needs of the nonprofit, saving the organization more than $300,000 during the lifetime of the array and also generating nearly $100,000 in income for the organization.
